

To ensure that students see the appropriate course information and can register properly, confirm the following information before enrollment opens. Log into the my.harvard Course Search and search for your courses by your last name, or the course name.

Question	What to Check in Course Search	Change Needed?
Course Components What type of course (e.g., lecture, seminar, reading/research) will you teach? Must students attend both lecture + discussion section? (or lab, film, etc.)?	“Course Component” should indicate the correct course type (e.g., lecture etc.) in course search. If students must enroll in multiple course components (e.g., lecture + discussion), confirm that the “i” symbol appears next to course type.	Yes/No
Instructor Consent Does your course require your approval to enroll?	Instructor Consent displays in the course search as: “Consent: Instructor” If consent is required, you (or course staff) will need to approve requests in my.harvard.	Yes/No
Course Enrollment Cap Do you wish to set an enrollment cap? If there’s a cap listed, is it correct? Note: Course with an enrollment cap must also have instructor consent.	A cap is indicated as “Class Capacity = 0/x” in the course search (x = cap). This option will allow you to select students requesting permission for the course. Please Note: There’s no limit to the number of students who may request permission, but you control the enrollment by approving requests.	Yes/No
Displayed Course Information Are your title, course description, course notes etc., accurate?	Review course title and description. The course title appears in the course search, on transcripts, and other locations. The description should explain course content and be concise so as to be easily readable on mobile devices.	Yes/No
Course Requirements Do students need to fulfill a certain requirement to enroll?	“Course Requirements” will be listed under the course description. If nothing displays and the course has a requirement (ex: pre-requisite), please request a new requirement. Note: Anyone can request permission, but those meeting the requirement will be enrolled without further approval needed.	Yes/No

If you answered “Yes” to changing anything above....

Contact your department’s curriculum coordinator before January 15th— s/he can make the appropriate adjustments.

Please Note: Any changes to the above information must be made before the start of term.
